

TechForum2012

Join Rick Hutley, Cisco's Vice-President of the Global Innovations Practice and one of Cisco's top technology visionaries as he explores technology that is solving human needs today and technology trends that will change the world, such as 3-D printing and smart dust that will connect everything to the internet.

Rick Hutley leads Cisco's global strategic consulting arm and advises top business leaders in every industry about how technology can help businesses achieve their goals. His insights are a culmination of over 28 years of significant industry experience. Before joining Cisco, Hutley was CIO of British Telecom's Concert Communications Company. He has graciously agreed to come to our community to inaugurate TechForum and show Cisco's support of technical education.

During his presentation, he will explore answers to questions regarding technology advances, such as what will happen and what are the implications of technology in our personal and professional lives? What are the innovation opportunities and why do they matter to Nevada County?

Come and network with other leaders in our area, understand new trends, while doing something great for our students.

About the Hosts: Sierra Economics and Science Foundation (SESF) sponsors TechTest, the annual merit scholarship exam for Nevada County's technology bound high school juniors and seniors, now in its 6th year. SESF is inaugurating TechForum, a series of technical forums that will bring technical experts, visionaries, economic and political leaders to the community for a luncheon meeting that imparts the latest happenings in their fields. All TechForum contributions are directly invested in the growth of our children's academic potential via the TechTest program.
